

Lane is a winter oat developed by the Oregon AES for use in the Willamette Valley where it is expected to replace Grey Winter. Of Grey Winter and Letoria parentage, Lane is tall, mid to late, and produces plump grey kernels. It lodges less than Crater, equals Crater and excels Powys in winterhardiness.